Preparedness Expenses Run $370,211,400

By RICHARD D. McMILLAN

British United Press. Exclusive Cable to The Edmonton Bulletin

LONDON, July 12.—The British government decided today to boost this year's budgetary appropriations for defence, already at a peace-time record by another large appropriation for army expansion, and added 179,105,000 ($370,211,400) to her 1939-40 expenses for preparedness.

The government announced a supplementary estimate of that amount to meet the cost of army expansion, including the territorial army, and for the recently-launched conscription program.

This increase boosted defence appropriations from £579,449,481 ($2,711,823,771) to £758,554,481 ($3,082,034,971).

Army expenditures alone for the year were £276,100,000 ($1,233,715,480). The British defence appropriation is approximately £227,201,100. Navy (£130,661,081). Air (£130,661,081).

The new army funds will be used for the ministry of supply, maintaining the conscription force and the territorial army.

DEPORTATION STEP STOPPED ST. PAUL MAN

Deportation proceedings against Walter Karawek, St. Paul district farmer, through the Paul district law firm of Jackson and McDonald, to prevent the deportation of his 25-year-old son, and the hearing Wednesday in Supreme court chambers before Mr. Justice T. M. Twine, J. N. McDonald, counsel for Karawek, announced that deportation proceedings had been discontinued.

These proceedings followed Karawek's conviction and six-month sentence in three charges of converting the proceeds of sale of three motor cars to his own use.

The deportation hearing was attacked on the grounds that it had been issued without jurisdiction, and that Karawek was a British subject, having acquired nationality when his father took that citizenship in 1915. Karawek at that time, being under 21 years of age, automatically became naturalized.

Not Considering Entering Any National Party Set-Up

ST. THOMAS, Ont., July 12.—Premier Heparburn said in his weekly Tuesday he has no federal aspirations whatsoever and is not considering entering any national party set-up.

Referring to published reports he and Premier Dufferin of Quebec might join forces to oppose Prime Minister Mackenzie King as the next federal leader, Mr. Heparburn refused to say what attitude he would take in a federal election campaign.

Because he was a personal friend of Mr. Dufferin, Heparburn was asked to comment for him, the premier added.

NOT TO INTERFERE

Mr. Heparburn said he did not propose to interfere in the individual affairs of Mr. Dufferin, but he would support him in any national party campaign.

Doodleguggers Hunt For $250,000 In Gold Chalked Up As Flop

By MITCHELL CURTIS

WATERLOO, Ont., July 12.—The directors could decide where to dig for gold and the directors succumbed to the lure of wild claims on a National Hunt for a $250,000 in gold. The search was chalked up as a flop today.

Legend has it that a group of Forty-Niners, with about $250,000 in gold and silver, were killed in a battle of Indians while hunting for gold in the mountains of Ontario. They buried the treasure. They were massacred and all that remained was the tale of a hidden gold.

WEIRD DEVICES

No one had done much about it until the summer opened yesterday. Then the Brotherhood of Gold Hunters of America, a national organization which claims ability to find hidden treasure through diverse personality development means—descended on the spot.

They had several weird devices known as doodleguggers and an alleged ability to communicate with the spirit of the Mound's gold.

Registration of All Aliens in Canada Urged In Legion Resolution

REGINA, July 12.—Registration of all aliens in Canada and a check upon their activities was advocated in a resolution passed Tuesday at the convention of the Saskatchewan command of the Canadian Legion.

Presented to the convention in four parts, the resolution asked for registration of aliens, a check on those returning to their own countries for military or political activities, and a check on naturalized citizens who do not conduct themselves in conformity with the law.

SECTION WITHDRAWN
The fourth section asked that newspapers, abusing their privileges by spreading disloyal propaganda be banned, but this section was withdrawn from the resolution.

Asking for registration of aliens, the clause required that they report annually to competent authorities. Aliens returning to their respective countries for military or other national service, without permission of Canadian authorities, should be required to take all their dependents with them and they should be denied future entry into Canada, the resolution said.

Desiring also that they return to Canada once they left for their own countries for military service, the clause required that they be hand to be cared for by Canadian taxpayers.

TORY MEETING INTERRUPTED BY FAST TRAIN

Makes Dramatic Appearance As Manion Discusses Rail Problem

By FRANK FLAHERTY
Ottawa Press Staff Writer
ANQUE, Que., July 12.—An express train, rear through the village last night to interrupt a meeting of the Conservative leader R. B. Manion was discussing the railway problem and referring to the position in relation to amalgamation of the Canadian National and the Canadian Pacific railways.

STAND CLEAR

Just as he was in the midst of his remarks, the railway station the warning bell at a nearby crossing began to ring. The chairman warned the audience to stand clear of the tracks and the Ocean Limited.

After Dr. Manion finished, but before the meeting ended, another train rushed through from the west. First public indication of approval was given by the Conservative party, and the federal the National party, now dominant in Quebec province, pulled back last night. Ferdinand Paré, Ontario National member, occupied a seat on the platform.

FRENCH MOTTO

A good French motto for Canada would be "en avance," said Dr. Manion, when I say an advance I mean we should all be optimistic. There is too much pessimism in Canada. If we are optimistic we can build up this country and give work and wages to all.

GOOLD STRIKE IS REPORTED NEAR ATLIN

PRINCE RUPERT, B.C., July 12.—A Calgary prospector and his partner brought news here Tuesday that a gold strike on Snake creek near Atlin where the two have been prospecting.

By route to his Alberta home, Frank Boyd brought a handful of nuggets, each weighing two ounces or more, which he said he and Angus Cameron had recovered from bedrock a month ago.

The pair reported a trip down around a claim for gold, which they picked up the nuggets on the creek bottom. He estimated 30 to 40 ounces daily could be recovered with proper machinery.

Boyd and Cameron staked four miles of claims on the creek, stream hitherto overlooked by gold seekers, which lies just south of the British Columbia-Yukon border and directly north of here.

INQUIRY INTO E.I.D. AFFAIRS IS CONCLUDED

Judge Jackson To Submit Report As Early As Possible

March by appointment of an official trustee pending investigation of the inquiry after request for a report was made by the government. The trustee appointed was George Robertson, assistant manager of the district.

Argument developed at the conclusion of the inquiry was made by Mr. Blackstock, counsel for the trustee, and G. M. Blackstock, K.C., commission counsel, over submission by Mr. Blackstock of a letter. The letter was written by C. C. Robertson, former Ontario member of the inquiry committee of Alberta, to Hon. J. M. Miller, Alberta minister of agriculture.

LETTER ACCEPTED
After a brief adjournment while Mr. McGowan consulted the trustee, the letter was accepted. The trustee Mr. McGowan said he was happy.

Mr. McGowan said that if commission counsel had furnished him with a copy of the letter he would have had Mr. Charlesworth present for cross-examination. Mr. Blackstock said Mr. Charlesworth had been called earlier by other counsel but was not present now.

Mr. McGowan suggested acceptance of the letter pending consultation with himself and Mr. Robertson, K.C., Calgary, counsel for the E. I. Gray, former manager of the district. He agreed to accept the letter written by Mr. Charlesworth.

BY COUNSEL

After the brief adjournment during which the trustee agreed to submission of the letter, it was read. The letter referred to authority vested in the trustee under legislation and declared that the trustee's decision made by the trustee should be clearly outlined in minutes.

Referring to organization of the Irrigation Development Land Co. by the E. I. D. M. Robertson, trustee, said the company seemed to have served the purposes for which it was organized and that the company was now to be dissolved.

"While transactions between the district and the company were irregular," appeared to be somewhat involved in some cases even irregular, there is not the slightest indication of personal benefit or profit accruing to any individual. Whatever was done was for the district," said Mr. Charlesworth's letter.

U.S. Sues Six Major Oil Firms

LOS ANGELES, July 12.—Charging monopoly, the United States attorney general sued six major oil companies for $5,000,000 in federal court Tuesday.

The government seeks to establish the right of the secretary of the interior to fix minimum royalty prices for oil and gas taken from the federal lands and to collect royalties claimed due in the Kettleman Hills North Dome field.

NOTHING INSULTING
"I can say this for Mr. Anderson that I do not think anything insulting about anyone," said Judge Jackson, who had nothing insulting in Mr. Anderson's evidence and Judge Jackson said he thought that should stand as a finding to Mr. Anderson.

Mr. Blackstock said that his inquiries had kept the E.I.D. staff working late but that they had given "no real assistance." The staff had been told that they had given "no real assistance" and that they had given "no real assistance."

TRIBUTE TO COUNSEL
Judge Jackson expressed satisfaction with the inquiry. He paid tribute to counsel who had acted in the best traditions. He said witnesses had been very fair (the trustees and Mr. Gray had been very fair and frank in their evidence, he added, and the staff members who gave evidence had spoken freely. He would have been disappointed had he not heard from farmers directly, he said.

More than a dozen farmers were heard during the last two sittings of the inquiry, some testified to the E.I.D. administration and others endorsing its activities and supporting the trustees.

The five farmers heard at the afternoon session were: H. Simpson, J. H. Edwards, Gabriel Greenfield, J. P. Royer and Robert Trevis. All said they had been in the oil business for many years.

WATER SUPPLY IMPROVED
The farmer, a former school teacher in the Tully district, said the ditches and structures were in good condition.

1 CENT SAVING BY ELIMINATION FREE DELIVERY

CALGARY, July 12.—Elimination of free delivery of petroleum products to farmers would mean a saving of one cent a gallon on farm sales, amounting to 50 per cent of total gasoline handled by the British Columbia Oil Co., said Miller, sales manager, at the McGillivray road commission Tuesday.

Mr. Miller said he did not believe the delivery could be eliminated without by government legislation. Meanwhile agents are negotiating a cent a gallon from the British American company to pay delivery expense, he said.

The witness also predicted a decrease in farm consumption in future years as new engines that run down on petroleum consumption are replacing older equipment on farms.

OTTAWA, July 12.—Crop prospects in the prairie provinces continue to be favorable as a second series of high bright weather has hastened growth and provided conditions following the good start obtained in June. The Dominion Bureau of Statistics said Tuesday in the seventh of 15 weekly telegraphic reports covering crop conditions in the prairies.

A considerable part of the wheat crop is now headed. Grasshoppers are flying but to date have caused little damage. Hard frosts look a considerable lot at scattered points. In good yields. Livestock are in good condition and pastures favorable.

Whither?

The Dominion Day week-end wasn't so terrible, after all, by comparison. Thirty-three persons in Canada met violent deaths from Saturday to Monday. But last week-end the fatality list ran to forty. Thirty were drowned in the eastern provinces alone, where hot weather drove scores of thousands to swimming places and boating places. More accidents seem to have taken relatively few lives.

The "quiet Canadian Sunday" of a generation ago has evolved into a weekly horror, a time of tragedy and grief and fifters. Maybe this is progress, but progress in what direction? Certainly not in the direction of happiness, peace of mind and long life.

The Thirsty Exiles

And now drought has struck Bermuda. The rain-water tanks on the roofs of the houses are empty, the populace is thirsty, and drinking water is being imported from the United States, 500 miles away. All around the little islands rolls the Atlantic ocean; there is "water, water everywhere," but not very much to drink.

Canadian sympathy for the Bermudians in their plight will not be wanting; we would gladly give them a good-sized lake if they could tow it home. But the feeling will be rather strained in the case of the Bermudian colony of expatriated Canadian millionaires, who took up residence there in order to avoid paying income taxes in the country where they made their money.

Not that, even in their case, their countrymen are hard-hearted. But why don't the exiled plutocrats cluck together, build a distilling plant, and supply the islands with drinking water galore taken from the sea? They might do at least that much for the hospital islanders who have given them asylum from the Canadian tax-collectors.

Paris Offers a Solution

Prime Minister Chamberlain defined Britain's commitment to Poland by telling the House of Commons that Britain accepts as fact the proposition that an open door at Danzig is essential to Polish independence. The meaning is plain. If Hitler should take possession of Danzig in any way to deprive Poland of its rights there, Britain and France will support Poland in asserting those rights by force.

Meanwhile "semi-official" sources at Paris suggested a constructive plan to settle the Danzig question, in a way which should be satisfactory to both Germany and Poland. Germany, it is suggested, be given technical authority over the free city; Poland assured free use of Danzig port and the mouths of the Vistula; and the whole area demilitarized.

Unless the will to peace has been utterly stamped out in one country or in both by marching battalions and rumbling tanks, this plan offers both a chance for "peace with honor," Germany would get the city it wants, and whose citizens seem to want to belong to the Reich; Poland would retain all the rights it now has in the Danzig area. And neither faction in the area would be armed.

To this safe and sane settlement there are two barriers. The Nazis are one. The Poles are the other. The loyalties of both are at white heat. Left to themselves, agreement is hopeless. But if Mussolini will talk reason to Hitler while Chamberlain and Daladier do the same at Warsaw, the thing is not impossible of accomplishment.

The Price of Gold

President Roosevelt no longer has power to further devalue the United States dollar; that is, to raise the price of gold. The statutory authority to do this by executive order lapsed a week ago, as hard-money Republicans battled to silence Democrats in Congress talked against the "close." With this authority gone also the stabilization fund, provided to keep the monies of other countries in line with that of the United States and thus steady trade conditions.

Canada is interested because the United States price for gold is the price, and therefore determines the rate at which gold-mining can be profitably carried on in the Dominion. Edmonton is very directly interested, because the price is a major factor in the development of northern mining areas.

When the price was raised a few years ago it became possible to mine low grade deposits which could not be profitably worked at the former price, while incentive was given to prospectors to locate and open up new deposits. Gold-mining all across Canada was galvanized into activity, thousands of men found new opportunities for employment, and trade with the northern districts boomed. A further price-increase would stimulate still greater activity in Canadian mining camps.

This will not perhaps worry the strange coalition of sound money men and silverites at Washington. But things nearer home may cause them to wonder whether their "victory" may not be something else. It has to be shown how unemployment can be fought in the United States without raising the gold price again, and without maintaining parity between United States and other currencies. What the President can no longer do, Congress may have to do by specific legislation. Mounting unemployment figures and a trade collapse would not popularize the cause of hard-money and a silver-bonus.

A Norwegian women's school and church at Nanyang were blown to pieces by Japanese bombs. Fifteen persons killed. Japan has not yet declared war against China, or Norway.

While police reinforcements surrounded the British embassy in Tokyo and broke up threatening mobs, an army spokesman said, "Never before has Japan been so hated of Britons." As the army chiefs fostered the hatred, this is to be taken as a boast. And for once their claims to efficiency cannot be disputed. They may not be able to conquer the Chinese, but as hate-provokers they are undoubtedly a success.

Hon. W. R. Motherwell, who criticized Hon. J. G. Gardiner's farm policies in parliament two months ago, nominated Mr. Gardiner as candidate in Melville, the constituency which Mr. Motherwell now represents. That is an illustration of the tolerance which is the essence of Liberalism. Members of that party do not have to sign on a dotted line, forswear the right to think, and maintain enemy toward members with whom they disagree.

The Passing Show

BY J. S. CONTER

The old conception of a university president as an intellectual sitting aloof in his ivory tower, oblivious of mundane affairs, has long been outworn. The modern university president is expected to handle politicians, wheedle requests out of millionaires and manage trusts and investments. But who'd have imagined the "prexy" a university president, carrying $500,000 of salary, and a $100,000 margin in twelve separate trading accounts and palming off $300,000 of worthless bonds on three unsuspecting trustees. That is the accusation made against Dr. James Monroe Smith, president of the Louisiana State University, who gave himself up to the police at Brookline, Ont., a few days ago.

The genial "prexy" who boasted that he knew how to "get along with politicians," was an appointee of the late Huey P. Long. The "prexy" at the time made comment on his reason for selecting Dr. Smith. He said the doctor had "a hide as tough as an elephant's." It sounded novel at the time, but the doctor's toughness may stand him in good stead now.

There are nine different investigations under way in Louisiana now to see if the doctor is guilty. President Smith's affairs will probably start severe more.

Heaven may be blamed for the doctor's dilemma. He was paid a $300,000 salary, grain on margin in the hope that war in Europe would send up the price, when heavy rains fell in the western States and Canadian prairies. With the prospect of a bonanza crop, wheat dropped ten cents. The learned educator took a loss of $350,000 instead of making a fortune.

Many strange parties have been named on the back of the wheel, grower, but who'd expect to find university presidents among them?

We remarked the other day on the different reactions of the Japanese to people of the white race—particularly in the matter of preserving "face." There is no frank admission of error. When a blunder overtakes them they will and shall oblige. It is an attitude from their recent feudalism, where the noble must always make himself appear to be right.

Why the Japs ALWAYS WIN I try to look nonchalant, the Japanese will reach for this dagger and thrust it into your life. I read a Japanese fighter going on the rocks off Vancouver Island in the area known as "the graveyard of the Pacific" where compasses go crazy and only beam compasses are reliable. His ship wasn't even lost. After salvage tugs had hauled it clear, to tow to port for repairs, the captain jumped ship. The Japanese require that they must not be humiliated. When you read of 15 Japanese planes downing 80 "Mongol" planes in a 15-minute air battle, and can't harmonize it with the report from Moscow, remember, "face" is a Japanese virtue must always be announced—especially in defeat.

General Iwane Matsu, victor of Nanking, is apparently in disgrace. He was brought home from his command in the Yangtze Valley. Reason for the disgrace is a matter of opinion. It may have been for permitting the Panay incident and arousing American hostility; it may have been because of the shock of the Japanese troops in Nanking, or it may be that he was away in China when the Japanese army was permuted with intrigue.

Announcement comes that General Matsui is "preparing to spend the rest of his life in prayers for the death of Hitler." This is a Japanese battlefield he will erect a shrine to Kwannon, the Japanese Goddess of Mercy. Is it remorse, or is it a way of saving "face"? If you can answer that with certainty, you have an insight into the Japanese character.

Humblest of all the combatants in the Great War were the carrier pigeons that dashed through the inferno of fire and thunder, or winged their way to bring aid to some flyer who had fallen. They were the messengers of mastery of science and power that man had made old birds.

For war, men still found effective the winged carriers who as far as they were concerned, were birds. Junius Brutus the dead news that reinforcements were on their way to aid the defenders of Melina against the army of the Persians. But the moderns are teaching the birds new tricks. By training young birds to fly shortly before dawn, and gradually increasing the time of starting, they can now fly through the night. More surprising still, they have been taught to return to movable homes. In a recent test, the birds were moved several miles away, but the birds flew straight to it. The old idea of the birds having an equivalent in their brains must be scrapped. The birds are now being trained to follow the chug wagon wherever it is moved to. All the experts need to do now is to teach the birds how to talk.

Religion Day By Day

BY WILLIAM T. ELLIS

THE WHITE STATUE

When I saw, in Copenhagen, the Thorvaldsen statue of Christ and his twelve apostles, I was nearly as much impressed as by the harsco replica of the white Christ in the rotunda of the John H. Hays building. That beautiful and benign figure, with outstretched hand, saying "Come unto Me, all ye that labor and are heavy laden, and I will give you rest," is an abiding inspiration.

All of us are at times weary and burdened, and craving nothing else so much as rest. We need a refuge, a place where we can lay down our heads and find peace. Jesus Christ, who has made us his disciples, and who has made us his people, is our refuge and our peace.

In simple, childlike faith, we would cast our souls into his arms, and he would take us into his arms. Master, that we may find rest unto our souls. Amen.

Read Matthew 11:28-30.

L. D. Wilgus, director of Canada's Commercial Intelligence Service, sees the beginning of a movement away from the economic nationalism that has plagued the world for the past ten years. He observes a trend towards removing the shackles from trade and an inclination to return to the more or less unrestricted system of some years ago.

True, it has not progressed very far yet. It is no more than a trend. But that the trend will continue is suggested by his comment that the initiative is passing from the restricted countries, which regulate trade in accordance with their import and currency requirements, to countries with strong currencies practicing more unrestricted trade.

That is to say, the democratic system of trade is gaining the upper hand over that of the dictatorial system.

It began with Mr. Hull's trade treaties, which are now becoming a real force in world affairs through the reduction of trade barriers. And it has continued through other factors such as the special effort being put forth by the United States to halt the dictatorial system of the South American field and the British effort to extend its trading influence through Central Europe, especially Russia.

Wilgus is in a position to observe these things. It is his job to watch world trade developments and he has the reports from numerous Canadian commercial stations in many countries to assist him. When he notes a trend towards free trade, his observation is based on concrete information. And his comments, before the Manufacturers' Association, therefore, are one of the most hopeful signs of recent times.—Saskatoon Star-Phoenix.

It is quite a common thing for non-members of the Orange order to ask on July 12 how it was that the order was brought to Canada. The explanation is simple. It was the Duke of Cumberland, grand master of Great Britain, to make the Orange order a great imperial order, reaching out to the far-flung parts of the British Empire. He was a brother of King George III, who he succeeded as grand master of Great Britain. When Ogle R. Gowan, who had been associated with the order for some years, came to Canada in 1826, he came determined to watch his opportunity for planting the Orange in British America.

In 1827 Mr. Gowan returned to the old country and was able to report that on Jan. 1, 1830, he had been able to found a lodge at Brockville, His report upon the progress of the association in Upper Canada was welcomed by the Duke of Cumberland and other leaders of the Orange order in Great Britain. The order was given a warrant for the Grand Lodge of British America, naming Mr. Gowan as the first grand master.

It was during the progress of the Orange doctrines of loyalty to God and the king would be of great value to the imperial connection, and that belief was justified, for ever since there has never been any doubt as to the Orange order, stands, in relation to allegiance to the empire.

It may be worth while recording that Orange parades were forbidden in the province of Canada in 1843 by the passage of the Province Processioning Act, which was not repealed until 1911, but, despite this ban, many lodges had their "walks" on the twelfth. There were often clashes with the Irish Catholics and many a head was broken as shillelaghs waved or fists hit out, but of recent years much of the old time bitterness has died out, both sections of Irishmen agreeing that it is wiser to be separate in belief and yet national in unity.

"My pedigree ends where yours begins!"

CANADIAN LUMBER PROGRAM LAUNCHED IN BRITAIN

Sale of Canadian lumber in the British market is expected to receive new impetus as a result of the decision to include this product in the "Canada Calling" campaign under which Canadian goods are advertised and merchandised in Britain by the Dominion Department of Trade and Commerce.

Announcement of the new lumber campaign reveals that it will have the full co-operation of the Eastern Canada and British Columbia timber commissioners who are resident in London, England, and will be directed particularly to the attention of British architects, builders and manufacturers.

The importance of the British market for Canadian lumber and wood products is indicated by the fact that purchases of these commodities from the Dominion in 1938 amounted to $22,562,866, of which $2,269,304 consisted of sawn timber planks and boards, veneers, shingles and other unmanufactured or partly-manufactured lumber. The remainder was made up of wood pulp, dross and other manufactured products.

Within the past two years great progress has been made in the sale of all-Canadian lumber in Scotland and England, and this development is expected to play an increasingly important part in the campaign to increase sales of the Old Country. These lumber goods are considered as a desirable way of expediting construction of moderate-sized dwellings in slum clearance projects. The lumber campaign was also launched by the Department of Trade and Commerce, to take full and timely advantage of this trend.

To Be a Hit at Dances Polish Steps at Home

You Can Walk Glamorously The romantic walk and you in a full floating dress! A dream of loveliness if you dance well—but what a different picture if you drop awkwardly, take clumsy babying steps.

Make your dancing match the gamine of your gown! Ray with diagrams and instructions to perfect steps at home—learn more in picture. Try the basic walk step we've diagramed.

1-Step forward on left foot. 2-Place right foot a short distance to the side of left. 3-Close with left foot. 4-Step back on right foot. 5-Place left foot a short distance to the side of right. 6-Close with right foot.

You dip slightly and gracefully—avoid a bobbing motion—if you take long steps on counts 1 and 4, flex the supporting knee.

And how airy, light-footed you are when you dance erect, hips firmly under the body, head up. You may be sure the stag line notes your graceful picture.

Other steps, other dances you learn quickly, easily from diagrams and instructions in our 25-page booklet. Given basic steps, variations of the waltz, fox-trot, slow fox-trot, rumba, tango, shag. Tips on posture, leading, following.

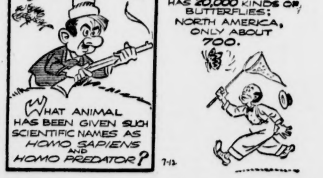

Send 15c in coin for your copy of Home Course in New Ballroom Dances to The Edmonton Bulletin, Home Service, Edmonton, Alberta.

Answer: Man, himself. By his wanton killing of wildlife he has well earned the addition of "predatory rap" to his Latin name of Homo.

INDIANAPOLIS TO ICE MINOR HOCKEY SQUAD

James Norris Part Owner; Organization Is Near Complete

NEW YORK, July 12.—Indiana-pol was granted a franchise in the International-American Hockey League last night, the league board of governors announced, extending the league to nine clubs for the 1939-40 season.

The franchise is owned by James Norris, wealthy Detroit grain operator and owner of the Detroit Red Wings, Arthur Wirtz, Detroit, and a group of several Indianapolis sportsmen.

Norris said organization of a team for Indianapolis is almost complete on paper. Last year he held a financial interest in Pittsburgh Hornets of the Int-Am, but in anticipation of getting the Indianapolis franchise, he sold out to John Harris, owner of the Pittsburgh Rink and Norris' partner in the team ownership.

LEWIS LIKELY BOSS
The player nucleus of Indianapolis will come from Pittsburgh as Norris owned the contracts of many of the players there. Herb Lewis, Detroit left-winger, is likely to be playing manager.

Harris will form his Pittsburgh team from players he obtains from Norris and other sources. He formerly owned the Pittsburgh Yellow Jackets, an amateur team, and developed Frankie Brimkie, Boston's sensational rookie goaltender.

Exploding a heavy hitting attack from the very first pitch, Medicos struck 15-7 last night in the first game of a best-of-five series for the Senior Softball League championship. Medicos took the championship against the strong Francos club and are now hot favorites to win the title.

Second game of this series will be played between these two teams on Thursday at Boyle's street grounds, and the third game booked for North Edmonton grounds on Friday evening. Both games will start at 8:30 p.m.

Medicos' lead will be maintained as they took an early lead and were never headed after a losing run against the Francos.

The Welders shelled two Francos pitchers as they drummed up their Bern attack. Currier, Williams and McPeak did the heavy hitting while their hit came off and went for several extra runs.
